

Bermuda Shorts*, by James J. Patterson
Alan Squire Publishing, 2010
186 pp., $22.00, paperback
ISBN: 978-0-9826251-2-5

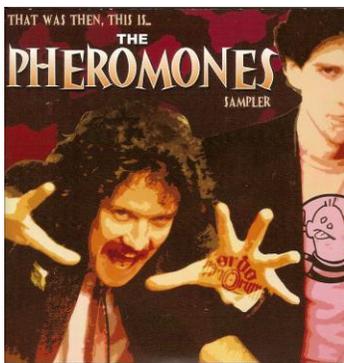

For Immediate Release: In the era of the rock memoir, here's one you don't want to miss – Bermuda Shorts, by James J. Patterson, AKA Jimmy Phormone, of the infamous political satire music duo, The Phormones.

The Broadkill Review says Bermuda Shorts “delivers coolness” as it gives an intimate glimpse into the evolution of the creative process of the co-founder of The Phormones – one of the last acts to appear on American Bandstand and one of the first on MTV.

With The Phormones, Patterson toured the U.S. for more than 15 years, during socially turbulent times, collecting the stories, anecdotes, and insights gathered in these essays spanning art, love, politics, and sports.

To complement the publication of Bermuda Shorts, Alan Squire Publishing is proud to introduce a limited edition CD, That Was Then,

This Is The Phormones' Sampler!, a ten-track sampler of songs – many of which are mentioned in the book.

Infamous for anthemic classics such as “Yuppie Drone,” and “Grace In The World,” rock rave-ups like “Attaboy” and “Feminine Deodorant Spray Makes Me Sneeze,” plus blistering satires including “The Supreme Court,” The Phormones spread their Loyal Opposition all across the globe. If you missed them barnstorming America in the 1980s and ‘90s, shame on you (as Jimmy says, “not having been born yet is no excuse.”) Their music is now more pop-relevant than ever.

(continued next page)

(Bermuda Shorts, pg. 2)

“Bermuda Shorts has all the ingredients of a classic conversation over a great meal with the author himself, savory flavors, contemplative moments, and pure hilarity all rolled into one fine repast... This is classic Jimmy, a steely mix of W.C. Fields, Groucho Marx, and Adlai Stevenson all hanging at the bar.” – Willy Porter

To schedule an interview with James J. Patterson, contact Alan Squire Publishing, (301) 530-2896 or via email at alansquirepublishing@gmail.com.

Please send book review tear sheets to the press at:
Alan Squire Enterprises
P.O. Box 341909
West Bethesda, MD 20827

-- ### --